Academic Joint Replacement

Marshall Orthopaedics, a university-affiliated physician group, is currently seeking qualified candidates for a joint replacement position within our department. This position, with a practice location at our academic medical center in Huntington, West Virginia, will provide for a practice that is primarily focused on the subspecialty of joint replacement.

Marshall Orthopaedics is an academic department affiliated with the Marshall University Joan C. Edwards School of Medicine. We support an orthopaedic residency and train 3 residents per year. Due to personal reasons, our junior joint replacement surgeon has decided to relocate to another region of the country. Thus, this position offers the opportunity to immediately assume a mature joint replacement practice that annually averages over 300 primary joint replacement surgeries and over 75 joint revision surgeries.

We offer an attractive, university employee-based benefits package that provides a very competitive compensation package, especially with respect to other academic medical centers. This position also offers the opportunity to be involved in resident and medical student educational activities and orthopaedic research activities.

About Marshall Orthopaedics - Marshall Orthopaedics is an academic-based physician group affiliated with Marshall University. Based out of Huntington, West Virginia, Marshall Orthopaedics has a network of clinical affiliations and provides patient care within offices in West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio. Our physicians are fellowship-trained in the full spectrum of orthopaedic subspecialties. We support an orthopaedic residency and train 3 residents per year.
